Unscripted Melodies: Sylvie Klijn & José Pino Live and Improvised

The distinct resonance of Sylvie Klijn's voice and José Pino's guitar delivers an enchanting repertoire that seamlessly intertwines the soulful essence of traditional jazz and the vibrant rhythms of Latin American music. This captivating fusion is further enriched by their original compositions, adding a unique and innovative dimension to the musical experience.

With each performance, audiences are invited on a journey through time and culture, where familiar melodies are reimagined and new harmonies are born, creating an irresistible allure that captivates the senses and leaves a lasting impression.

This project has emerged from a spontaneous collaboration aimed at refining the musical language developed by each musician over the years. It has grown naturally, without the need for prior preparation of a specific repertoire. Instead, José and Sylvie have allowed their shared musical language to guide them.

About Sylvie Klijn

Sylvie Klijn, a versatile singer and composer, maintains a presence in both Switzerland and the Netherlands. She holds master's degrees from the Fontys Conservatory (NL) with a specialization in composition, piano, and singing, as well as a master's degree in Arts and Society from the University of Utrecht (NL). From 2019 to 2021 she pursued a master's program in jazz voice and composition at the Haute École de Musique Lausanne in Switzerland. She has been selected for a residency at the prestigious organization L'Abri Genève for the academic year 2022-2023. In addition, she has been granted participation in the music talent development program of Noord-Brabant (Netherlands), Music Hub Brabant, throughout 2024.

Sylvie embarked on her musical journey as a classical pianist, achieving acclaim with victories at the Selection National Competition and the Princess Christina Competition. Subsequently, she received invitations from the Dutch embassy in Tunisia to showcase her talents through concerts. Transitioning from her classical roots, Sylvie delved into jazz and pop music, seamlessly blending these genres in her compositions. Her works evoke distant realms through wordless melodies or convey narratives with subtle influences. Notably, with her Dutch ensemble, the Klijn Kwartet, Sylvie has graced prestigious venues including the Grachtenfestival, radio 4, jazz stage Paradox, TivoliVredenburg, and concert hall Willem II. The group's album "Safe Ground" was released to critical acclaim in June 2019.

As both a vocalist and composer, Sylvie is involved in numerous projects based in Switzerland. Notably, she co-founded the trio Vagalumes alongside percussionist Samuel Boutros and guitarist Paul Alberto Gonzalez Ostos, with a primary focus on Brazilian music. Drawing inspiration from the works of poets Fernando Pessoa and Florbela Espanza, Sylvie incorporates their poems as lyrics in her compositions. The trio's exceptional talent was recognized when they were awarded the prestigious Coup de Coeur prize during the JazzContreBand competition in October 2021. Furthermore, in February 2024, they celebrated the release of their debut album under the ANUK label.

Sylvie collaborates with accordionist Lea Gasser, forming the duo OXEON. With a shared classical background, they reimagine classical works through arrangements and improvisations, while also incorporating their original compositions and expanding their sound with effects pedals. OXEON's talent has been recognized with a selection for the semi-finals of the Lavaux classique competition. The album "Somewhere Far" (2023) is a testament to their partnership, signed with both the Dutch SONNA Records and the Swiss ANUK label.

Sylvie's versatility extends to her roles as a sidewoman or lead singer in various ensembles, including the Bigband Jazzin' Fribourg and the Antoine Brochot Quartet.

Sylvie had the opportunity to participate in the Keep an Eye Summer Jazz Workshop at the Conservatory of Amsterdam, as well as a course at the Complete Vocal Institute in Copenhagen. In Switzerland, she has showcased her talents at esteemed events such as the JazzOnze+ festival, Cully Jazz Festival, Antigél festival, and NovaJazz festival. Additionally, Sylvie has had the honour of performing her original compositions on Swiss radio.
